On 18th August a group of 21 students of the Round Square Committee and Home Science visited Amar Jyoti - school and rehabilitation center.

The students were escorted by the school Round Square Representative Mrs Radha Khanka and Home Science Teacher Mrs Shweta Chaudhary. The purpose of the visit was to conduct a survey regarding the behavior and needs of the specially abled children. Apart from this they also explored the possibilities of associating with the organization in diverse initiatives.

SKV students interacted with the students and also witness the classes in progress. They were very impressed with the teaching skills adopted for the visually challenged, hearing impaired and mentally challenged. Their grasping power and interest in the lessons was amazing. They visited the language lab, computer lab(with special software for the visually challenged), library (equipped with teaching aids for all types of disabilities and tools in the braille), the art and craft as well as the tailoring and pottery section. Wherever they went, they found children immersed in different activities.

The visit taught them that where there is a will there is definitely a way - one just have to look out.

We had all heard about TED-x talks and our joys knew no bounds when we got the opportunity to attend the Ted x talk organized by ABVIITMG on 25th August.

A group of 19 girls escorted by Mrs Priya Ailani and Mrs Radha Khanka got to listen to the experiences shared by seven speakers from diverse fields.

The first speaker Goloka Vrindavan Dasa from ISKON emphasized on having at least one selfless , intimate relation in life. Joyita Mandal, the first transgender judge , left us all reflecting on the need to sensitize society towards transgenders.

Oyindrilla Ray Ghosh, a young model and designer emphasized on embracing diversity. Bani Yadav, the biker, left us with the thought that we must keep our passions alive and chase them.

Mr Pushkar Jain described technology as an art that is a soaring imagination of the human mind. MR Sandeep Jain, the CEO of Geeks, shared his experience with the audience about how he realized the need to create a platform for fresh engineering graduates, create their job profiles and help them prepare for interviews.

The last speaker for the day, Mr Amandeep Singh enthralled all with his art of story telling.

He advised the students to keep exploring until they discover what is the best for them.

We all returned with a lot of thoughts to reflect on.
