PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

April began with an exciting rhythm of a fresh new session and reached the crescendo with yet another victory in this years Dharohar: Assam Heritage.

Lets express heartfelt gratitude to each other for hard work, dedication, and unwavering support.

As we break for the summer holidays, I encourage everyone to use the well-deserved break to rest, relax, and recharge. May this holiday provide an opportunity for making family bonds stronger through quality time with loved ones.

Wishing you all a wonderful summer break!

*EditorialTRUE BLUE

Everywhere around us, the school, even the world, seems to be bursting with hues of blue.

The azure summer sky seems to keep a watchful eye on our school as we usher in the new session, and ultramarine peacocks seem to call out with renewed vigour. The school flag soars, and the peak of the clock tower glints off the sunlight. Cheers still ring in the hostels for our men in blue, proof of the lingering joy of having brought home the champion. This month, the SKV community has truly made blue a colour of brightness and joy. Our students wore it with pride as they clinched the overall first position in the Assam Dharohar Fest, and they carried their spirit to all corners of our country - from Bhopal, to Dehradun, to Rajkot.

Yet again, this colour has instilled in us a sense of unity, and we all continue to strive for the excellence that our brilliant girls, both presently and in the history of this school, have worked so hard to associate to its myriad shades.

25TH-27TH APRIL

Ankia Naat Bhaona

The Ankia Naat Bhaona event was a vibrant celebration of Assam's rich theatrical tradition, with each team breathing life into this centuries-old art form. With elaborate costumes, traditional masks, expressive dialogues, and the rhythmic grace of Bhaona Nritya, each performance showcased the teams' deep cultural understanding and artistic discipline.

Sattriya Nritya

Sattriya Nritya, a classical dance form from Assam rooted in devotional storytelling introduced by Srimanta Sankardev in the 15th century. The participating teams beautifully brought to life the essence of this sacred art through their graceful movements, expressive gestures, and intricate footwork.

WORDSMITHS OF SKV

Back to Earth

She looked at the sight, floating high,
Thought of her first day on Earth, her very first cry.

She gazed at the white clothes and the wooden pyre,
The cloth lit, and all that was left were ambers of the fire.

She remembered her babbling, her half-toothed smile,
A time when she didn't know how to speak, and then no time.

Her joy when she got the job, her sorrow when her father passed,
The time she realised that only love and smiles were what last,
She remembered her 'first love', her broken-little-heart,
She had cried for a week, and then time had passed.

Today, she realised all were made of soil, and ticked by,
She thought she was passing time, but time?- it was too sly.
The ambers left now, were of a fire lit on her birth,
All that remains are the words she said, rest?
Consumed back to the Earth

Estranged and Unfound

In the faces

Of those strangers

Of these strangers
Where you had been
Merely an epoch ago
Disappeared
Now; lost in them
Maybe a trace of you
Or an anecdote
Proof of your existence
And the crux of mine
Not the loss of you
But a lack
An unsatiated crave
Or desperate longing
